Special dogs for special needs

Passenger service dogs assist a broad range of people with disabilities including vision, hearing impairment and general disabilities.

Such dogs are identified either by a medallion on their collar or wear a coat on their back, and the handler or client carries an ID card.

Recently there have been some instances where taxi drivers have refused access to customers accompanied by a service dog. Assistance dogs cannot be refused by a taxi driver and dogs are permitted to ride in the front footwell of the taxi with the passenger seated on the seat.

Driver Training courses cover these essential requirements of the law and all taxi drivers should embrace professional standards by assisting customers, and in particular those who are vision impaired, to their entry point when they arrive at their destination.
